Executive security profiling helps ensure that private individuals and/or families are adequately protected from risks they may encounter in their personal and professional lives.

A review evaluates the individual and/or family group's overall risk profile, identifying any apparent weaknesses in protective security and recommending effective counter measures for the better protection of the individual or family.

NYA seeks to make recommendations that are in tune with individuals' risk appetite, without compromising their lifestyle. We typically assess and comment on the following areas:

- Open source, online profile risk exposure
- Security risk management: policy framework, management resourcing, crisis management plans and procedures in place
- Residential and work place security
- Travel risk management: for both domestic travel and overseas
- Lifestyle risk exposure
- Immediate family risk exposure

An executive security profile provides peace of mind and helps protect individuals, assets and reputation.
