NYA works with an organisation's crisis management team to develop a simple but effective kidnap incident management plan that details:

- Key exposures and at-risk personnel
- Incident management team resources, roles and responsibilities
- Third party response consultancy activation
- The organisation's policy in relation to certain issues in advance
- Checklists and guidance for recording critical information and communications
- Procedures to ensure the continuation of key organisational activities for the duration of the crisis
- Steps to follow to help manage the incident to a successful conclusion

Any regional or in-country kidnap management plans should cascade from and dovetail with the corporate headquarters' procedures, providing risk and location specific risk management that complies with a consistent company wide approach.
